Get Involved

Professional Organizations, Honor Societies, and Clubs

American Psychological Association: The APA is a scientific and professional organization that represents psychology in the United States. With 150,000 members, APA is the largest association of psychologists worldwide.

Labs, Centers, Research

American Indian Support Project: This project was launched in 1986 as an effort to impact the shortage of Native American mental health professionals and school psychologists. The Psychology Department at USU remains committed to training American Indian graduate students at the master's and doctoral levels.

Center for Clinical Studies: This center has one overarching objective: to assist in advancing the field of clinical psychology in developing effective and acceptable psychological interventions.

Center for Persons with Disabilities: The CPD is a nationally recognized research center that joins the expertise of researchers and faculty with community partners to address the most difficult challenges facing persons with disabilities and their families. Research addresses issues that cross fields ranging from biomedicine to education. In clinical experiences, learners join teams of professionals, family members, and individuals with disabilities to deliver services and supports.

Laboratory Animal Research Center: The LARC is a controlled laboratory that utilizes animals in teaching and research. The proper care of animals is of utmost importance as it relates to the effectiveness of research and the safety of the animals and researchers.

Multisensory Cognition Laboratory: This lab uses both habituation and choice paradigms to investigate the development of numerical cognition across the human lifespan. The lab is particularly interested in whether multisensory information enhances our abilities to discriminate between and perform computations on numbers.

Office of Methodological and Data Sciences: The primary goal of the OMDS is to provide high-quality, faculty-supervised research design and quantitative analysis services to graduate students. It also provides essential methodological consulting experiences to graduate students in the Department of Psychology.

Psychology Community Clinic: This clinic serves as the primary mental health service and training site for graduate students studying clinical, counseling, and school psychology. It provides mental health services to a broad range of clients in the area, as well as students and staff at USU. Services are provided by graduate students working at a level appropriate to their training under the supervision of licensed psychologists.
