Ovid’s Metamorphoses, Book 6: Arachne and Minerva

Minerva, the Roman embodiment of Athena the Greek goddess of war and wisdom, was the inventor and patron deity of weaving and embroidery, skills which women in classical antiquity learned and practiced in the home. As a goddess, she expected the usual adoration and devotion from those who worshiped her, especially those gifted in her own spinner’s art.

Arachne, a poor country girl, was known far and wide as a wondrous weaver. However, she was also boastful, claiming even that she was superior to Minerva. Offended, the goddess dressed up as an old hag and went to Arachne to warn her against her hubris (immoderate pride). Nothing fazed this girl who only slightly blushed when Minerva revealed herself.

Far from giving credit to the goddess as the source of her skill, and unmindful of the danger posed by the presence of an angry deity so close by, the foolish girl challenged Minerva to a yarn duel, a looming Olympics.

In Ovid’s tale, when both are finished with their furious fabricating, Arachne has indeed won the contest—non illud Pallas, non illud carpere Livor / possit opus (“Not Pallas, not Envy could pluck out a flaw in that work”), says Ovid—having flawlessly detailed the gods and their improprieties with mortal women, a thinly-veiled ironic affront. Minerva, on the other hand, had spun pictures of puny mortals turned into various creatures after defying the gods’ warning, an admonition literally woven into every corner.

As Ovid heads into the following passage, the question that lingers in the reader’s mind is what web of retribution has the arrogant Arachne spun for herself.

doluit successu flava virago the golden-haired goddess felt pain at the outcome et rupit pictas, caelestia crimina, vestes, and she broke down the embroidered cloth, (depicting) divine crimes, utque Cytoriaco radium de monte tenebat, and as she held the shuttle from the Cytorian mountain, ter quarter Idmoniae frontem percussit Arachnēs. twelve times Minerva struck the forehead of Idmonian Arachne.

[continued on the next page]
non tulit infelix, laqueoque animosa ligavit The unlucky (girl) did not suffer (the insult) and with a noose she bound guttura: pendentem Pallas miserata levavit

(her) proud throat: feeling pity, Minerva lifted (her) up, hanging, atque ita ‘Vive quidem, pende tamen, improba,’ dixit and said thus: “Live, then! Yet hang, presumptuous (girl)!

‘lexque eadem poenae, ne sis secura futuri, and let the same condition of penalty, lest you be carefree about the future, dicta tuo generi serisque nepotibus esto!’ be set for your offspring and distant descendants!”

post ea discedens sucis Hecateidos herbae After these things, (as she was) departing, she suddenly sprinkled (her) sparsit et extemplo tristi medicamine. Tactae with the juices of an infernal herb and a poisonous drug. Touched, defluxere comae, cum quis et naris et aures, (Arachne’s) hair flowed away and with them both (her) nose and ears, fitque caput minimum, toto quoque corpore parva est:

and (her) head becomes very small, she is also small in her whole body;

in latere exiles digiti pro cruribus haerent, slender fingers cling on (her) side in place of legs, cetera venter habet: de quo tamen illa remittit

(her) belly occupies the rest: from which, nevertheless, that (girl) lets out stamen, et antiquas exercet aranea telas.

a thread, and the spider works (her) ancient looms.
Arachne and Minerva: Worksheet

a. The questions below pertain to the forms underlined in the passage.

b. When you’re asked to change a word from one form to another, change only that form of the word. For instance, if you’re asked to change habet to the passive voice, make habet passive but leave it in the 3rd person singular, present indicative.

1. Make doluit pluperfect. ________________________________________________

2. Change flava virago to dative. _________________________________________

3. What case is crimina and why? _______________________________________

4. What case is Cytoriaco and why? ______________________________________

5. Change percussit to future passive. _____________________________________

6. Make infelix neuter. __________________________________________________

7. Change ligavit to a future active participle modifying laqueo. _____________

8. Make pendentem modify guttura. _______________________________________

9. What mood is pende and why? ________________________________________

10. What case is improba and why? _______________________________________

11. Change eadem to genitive plural. _______________________________________

12. Make ea singular. _____________________________________________________

13. Change discedens to perfect passive. ________________________________

14. Make sparsit passive. ________________________________________________

15. What case is medicamine and why? ___________________________________

16. Change naris to genitive plural. _______________________________________

[continued on the next page]
17. Make caput plural. ________________________________________________

18. Make toto…corpore genitive. _______________________________________

19. What case is parva and why? _______________________________________

20. Change haerent to perfect second person singular. ______________________

21. What case is cetera and why? _______________________________________

22. Change habet to a future passive participle modifying venter. ___________

23. Change remittit to a passive infinitive. ________________________________

24. Change stamen to genitive plural. ____________________________________

25. Change exercet to a future active participle modifying stamen. ________
Arachne and Minerva: Notes and Vocabulary

130. doluit: doleo,-ere, dolui, dolitum: feel pain successu: successus, -_s, m.: outcome; ablative of cause (“at the outcome,” i.e. of the weaving contest) flava: flavus, -a, -um: blonde, golden-haired virago: virago, -inis, f.: heroic woman; here, goddess

131. rupit: rumpo, -ere, rupi, ruptum: break down pictas: pictus, -a, -um: painted, embroidered caelestia: caelestius, -a, -um: divine crimina: crimen, -inis, n.: crime vestes: vestis, -is, f.: cloth

132. ut: (conj.) as Cytoriaco...de monte: “from the Cytorian mountain,” referring to boxwood, a type of tree which grows in Greece. The shuttle of Athena’s loom is made of boxwood.
radius: radius, -ii, m.: pointed rod; here, shuttle

133. ter (adv.): three times quarter (adv.): four times; with ter, “twelve times” Idmoniae;: Idmonian, from the family of Idmon; with Arachn_s frontem: frons, frontis, f.: forehead percussit: percutio, -ere, -cussi, -cussum: strike Arachn_s: Arachn_, -_s, f.: Greek genitive: Arachne, daughter of Idmon

134. tulit: fero, ferre, tuli, latus: suffer infelix: infelix, -icis: unlucky laqueo: laqueus, -i, m.: noose animosa: animosus, -a, -um: proud ligavit: ligo, -are, -avi, -atum: tie

135. guttura: guttur, -uris, n.: throat; here, plural for singular pendentem: pendeo, pendere, pependi: hang Pallas: Pallas Athene: (Greek nominative), equated with the Roman goddess Minerva miserata: “feeling pity” levavit: levo, -are, -avi, -atum: lift

136. ita: (adv.) thus quidem: (conj.) then tamen: (conj.) yet improba: improbus, -a, -um: shameless, presumptuous; here, used as a substantive

137. lex: lex, legis, f.: law; here, condition ne sis: “lest you be”; sis is the present subjunctive second singular of sum secura: securus, -a, -um: secure, carefree

138. dicta: with esto, said; here, set (+ dative) generi: here, offspring, family seris: serus, -a, -um: late(r); here, distant nepotibus: nepos, -otis, m.: grandson, descendant esto: let...be! (imperative second person singular of sum)

139. discedens: discedo, -ere, -cessi, -cessum: depart sucus: sucus, -i, m.: juice, sap Hecateidos: an adjective based on the Greek name Hecat, -s, f., the moon-goddess and mistress of witch-craft; agrees with herbae. Also referred to as Hell-bane, this poison usually causes death but in Arachne’s case turns her into a spider. herbae: herba, -ae, f.: herb, plant

140. sparsit: spargo, -ere, sparsi, sparsum: sprinkle extemplo: (adv.) immediately tristi: tristis, -e: sad; here, “poisonous” medicamine: medicamen, -inis, n.: drug, medicine

141. defluxere = defluxerunt; defluo, -ere, fluxi: flow away comae: coma, -ae, f.: hair cum quis = quibuscum (defluxere) naris: naris, -is, f. nose aures: auris, -is, f.: ear

142. fit: “becomes”; from fio, fieri, factus sum: be made, become caput: caput, capitis, n.: head toto...corpore: lit. “in (respect to her) whole body”; ablative of specification quoque: (adv.) also, too; usually placed after the word it emphasizes

143. latere: latus, -eris, n.: side exiles: exilis, -e: slender digitii: digitus, -i, m.: finger pro: (prep.) in place of ; + ablative cruribus: crus, cruris, n.: leg haerent: haereo, -ere, haesi, haesum: clinging

144. ceteri, -ae, -a: the rest venter: venter, ventris, m.: belly remittit: remitto, -ere, remisi, remissum: let out

145. stamen: stamen, -inis, n.: warp (of a loom); i.e. the thread hanging from a distaff exercet: exerceo, -ere, -ui, -itum: work aranea: aranea, -ae, f.: spider telas: tela, -ae, f.: web; loom