

Parent Declaration of Student Dependency

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) of 1974 prohibits Utah State University from releasing certain personally identifiable information from a student's record to a third party (e.g. parent, spouse, etc.) without the student's explicit written consent. There are two circumstances, however, under which Utah State University may disclose personally identifiable information to parents/guardians of students: (1) by obtaining the student's written consent on a Permission to Release Student Information form, or (2) by completing this form and verifying that the parent claimed the student on the most recent tax return.

DO NOT SIGN this form until you are in the presence of an appropriate USU staff member or Notary Public. Appropriate USU staff members are in the following offices: Registrar's Office, Financial Aid Office, or the Office of Retention and First-Year Experience.
