Founders Day &
Old Main Society
Celebration 2021
Founders Day 2021

On March 8, 1888, the Utah Territorial Legislature passed a bill establishing a new college to be built in Cache County. A little over a year later, on July 27, 1889, a group of territorial officials gathered to lay the cornerstone for the first building on what would later become the campus of Utah State University, a promising new institution of higher education. It was a momentous occasion in Utah history.

Today, more than 130 years later, the university’s growth would have astounded the founders. The original building, now called Old Main, has been joined by more than 400 others, including a vast expansion of regional campuses, exemplifying the land-grant mission. The initial nine-person faculty has grown to more than 900, and the first student body of 139 has swelled to more than 28,000.

Each year at Founders Day, Utah State University celebrates the steadfast and visionary men and women who sacrificed to establish our great institution and honors those who today sacrifice to ensure a world of opportunity for future generations eager to achieve their hopes and dreams.

Old Main, affectionately remembered by succeeding generations of students and characterized by the bell tower, has been a distinctive icon of Utah State University for all who have walked its halls as students, faculty, or guests. The Old Main Society was established in 1967 to recognize those who have risen to the challenge of the founders and assisted the university through their private gifts. We thank and honor those individuals who selflessly contribute their time and resources for the future of Utah State.
AGGIE STRONG

CELEBRATING THE STRENGTH & RESILIENCY OF THE AGGIE SPIRIT

Utah State University is honored to recognize our outstanding alumni, donors, students, faculty, and friends who have persevered and created opportunity from uncertainty. We hope you enjoy this evening of inspiration as we showcase those who exemplify Utah State’s mission of service through learning, discovery, and engagement. This virtual event includes music, interactive breakout sessions, and stories of strength and resiliency from our Aggie Family.

AWARD PRESENTATIONS

USU Uintah Basin Campus Aggie Bull Sculpture
Donated by Marc and Debbie Bingham
Their work is supported by their eight books published in 10 foreign languages, numerous peer-reviewed research articles published with or by scholars, and 20+ years of clinical application around the world. MBB, a brain and evidence-based clinical technique, successfully treats an entire spectrum of mental disorders and dysfunctional conditions including anxiety, depression, Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD), domestic violence, conflict, stress, and addiction. The I-System Model of Human Behavior expands MBB’s application to collectives (e.g., families, groups, organizations, nations, etc.) with the aim of optimizing functioning and engendering inner and world peace.

Stan and Carolyn are grateful to have found a perfect home for MBB and the I-System Model of Human Behavior in the I-System Institute for Transdisciplinary Studies at Utah State University within the Department of Sociology, Social Work and Anthropology in the College of Humanities and Social Science. In addition to providing multiple gifts to support the Institute, they have donated their intellectual property, thus enabling USU to be the global center of I-System research and initiatives. Over the past three years, thousands of USU students and student athletes have learned through classes and workshops MBB skills that promote resilience, wellness, and excellence. Human services professionals, teachers, children, and families throughout the world have also gained tools through participating in MBB workshops that help them build resilience during stressful and trying times.

Their lifetime body of work, as well as their philanthropic efforts to make the I-System Institute at USU a nationally acclaimed institution, make the Blocks deserving of this year’s Spirit of Old Main Award. This award is designed to recognize the work of exceptional individuals in advancing USU as an educational institution.

Stan, a physician with 55 years of experience, is board certified in Psychiatry and Psychoanalysis and has held academic appointments at multiple universities including his alma mater UCLA School of Medicine. Carolyn, a vessel of God, is a mother, wife, author, poet, and gardener. The Blocks have a 40-year history of helping those in need. They happily reside in Copalis Beach, Washington.
Beyond their successful business ventures, Sam and Kacie have consistently sought ways to do good. In 2016, the couple formalized the Malouf Foundation, a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization, to maximize the company’s ability to enact positive, impactful changes in countless lives.

The Malouf Foundation works to confront child sexual exploitation through education, healing, and justice. One of its main initiatives is the survivor-led and informed OnWatch™ training that’s designed to empower people to spot, report, and prevent trafficking.

Aiding the Cache Valley community wherever possible, Malouf employees were able to raise nearly $30,000 for the Cache Community Food Pantry in support of local COVID-19 relief efforts last year and have previously given support to organizations like Make-A-Wish Utah, CAPSA, The Family Place, and Sleep in Heavenly Peace.

Both Utah State University graduates, Sam and Kacie have been selected as recipients for this year’s Distinguished Alumni award. This award is presented to individuals who actively demonstrate outstanding traits of leadership and character to such an extent that it brings great credit to the recipient and to their alma mater. Sam and Kacie’s role as industry leaders in Cache Valley and their tireless efforts to be a force for good within the community mark the couple as deserving recipients for such an award.

Kacie and Sam are proud parents to five children and currently reside in Nibley, Utah.
Charisse Bremond Weaver

Charisse Bremond Weaver is a passionate, dedicated leader in the not-for-profit sector. Her focus and desire are to serve her community and make it a better environment for those she touches and those they touch.

Charisse is leading the Brotherhood Crusade that was founded by her late father Walter Bremond in 1968. She's been the President and CEO of the Brotherhood Crusade for nearly 15 years. During her tenure, she has significantly expanded the organization's reach, profile, and partnerships. Charisse leads a team of 75, 45 of whom who are full time. They have raised more than $70 million and increased annual operating budget to $6.7 million from $1 million in 2006. Her team directly serves approximately 3,000 low-income youth and young adults between the ages of 10 and 24 through various trauma-informed youth development programs, and impacts more than 20,000 youth, young adults, and families annually.

Earlier in her career, Charisse made strides with other non-profits in raising funds and increasing their impact. These skills served as a foundation for later growth. The combination has created a virtuous circle of favorable impact.

As a community leader, Charisse has been recognized locally and nationally through numerous awards, including by KTLA Channel 5 as a Black Visionary; KJLH Radio 102.3 FM as a Proven Achiever; Black Business Association as the recipient of the Outstanding Community Service Award; County of Los Angeles in recognition of Outstanding Leadership; African American Film Marketplace/S.E. Manly Short Film Showcase as Humanitarian of the Year; NBA great Stephen Curry, who selected Brotherhood Crusade as his charity to support for the NBA All-Star game; Bank of America as the Neighborhood Builder Recipient; and, along with her husband George Weaver, she was given the James Irvine Foundation Leadership Award.

Charisse came to Utah State University on a basketball scholarship, where she received a degree in Communications. She was previously recognized by USU as a Young Alumna of the Year in 2009, and will fittingly add this year’s Distinguished Alumna award to her accolades. She feels her journey is well underway, but nowhere near completed.

Charisse and her family reside in Los Angeles, California.

BREAKOUT ROOMS

You will be able to choose from four breakout rooms. All will be recorded and available online after the event.

Aggie Strong: Strength and Resiliency through Mind-Body Bridging
Experience first-hand how the tools of Mind-Body Bridging can relieve anxiety, stress, and other life challenges to make your life more meaningful. Old Main Society awardees Dr. Stanley H. and Carolyn Block and Professor and Head of the Department of Sociology, Social Work and Anthropology, Dr. Derrik Tollefson will guide you through a Mind-Body Bridging exercise. Have a paper and pencil handy.

Distinguished Alumni Award Recipients
Distinguished Alumni Sam and Kacie Malouf, and Charisse Bremond Weaver will discuss the various ways they’ve enacted positive, impactful changes in countless lives throughout their communities. Alumni Advisory Board President Laurel Cannon Alder will be the moderator.

USU’s History of Resiliency
Emeritus Professor of American History Dr. Ross Peterson will take you on a journey through Utah State history and show its resilience and strength through times of challenge. Chair of the USU Foundation Board Travis Lish will be the moderator.

Aggie Strong Women Past and Present
Their lives are distinct, but their achievements illuminate a common theme. You will be inspired by stories about the resiliency of Aggie and other Utah women throughout the years during this discussion led by Dr. Patrick Mason, Leonard J. Arrington Chair of Mormon History and Culture and Associate Professor of Religious Studies and History. Professor of English Dr. Joyce Kinkead will be the moderator.
