Summer Activity Guide 2024

Seventy-six percent of all Utah school age children 5-12 years old have parents in the workforce. This presents the potential for many of our children to be left at home without adult supervision or a set schedule during the summer months. While some older children may show responsibility and maturity, leaving younger children alone for extended periods during the summer can pose risks to their safety, well-being, and emotional health. Ideally, adult supervision or organized activities are recommended for children under 12 during the summer.

Summertime activities are a wonderful opportunity for kids while they are out of school. Children who are engaged in summertime activities gain increased physical health, social development, emotional well-being, and general life skills. Care About Childcare recognizes the importance of children being involved in summertime activities. We hope you take the time to look through these activities and pick out those that are best suited to your child's interests and your needs.

This is not a comprehensive list, although we have done our best to include as many programs in the area as possible. While we have also made every effort to ensure the following information is accurate and up to date, programs in this guide are subject to change. Please double check that the following listings are active by contacting business or researching before you make plans. Please contact the program for further information on cost, hours of operation and enrollment.

Feel free to contact us with any questions or if we can be of further service to you and your family. Give us a call at (435) 797-1552 or email us at childcare.help@usu.edu. You can also visit our website for more information at www.cac.usu.edu.
