COVID-19 Series: Tools and Resources for Rural Communities

The Western Rural Development Center is collaborating with its regional partners to conduct research, analyze data, and provide useful, timely, science-based information to colleagues and communities regarding the various impacts, challenges, and opportunities related to the COVID-19 pandemic. This information will be published in our COVID-19 Series and resources will be added to our COVID-19 Resource web page.

This brief in the COVID-19 Series provides an annotated reference guide from a national, regional, and local perspective for those navigating a pandemic and other economic shocks in rural communities during these turbulent times. Read the brief "Tools and Resources for Rural Communities in Turbulent Times: Pandemics, Recessions, Wildfires and Other Natural Disasters."
